State powers – colonial origins
In 1850 the Australian Colonies Government Act was passed by the British Parliament.
Prior to separation in 1859, the area now known as Queensland was governed from Sydney as part of the colony of New South Wales.

Queen Victoria granted approval and signed Letters Patent on 6 June 1859 to establish the new colony of Queensland.
In 1859 Brisbane was declared a municipality - a city with its own local government, before Queensland was separated New South Wales. It was declared under the NSW Municipalities Act 1858.
Established in 1864
This is to certify that the question of an Australasian Federal Constitution was submitted to the Electors of Victoria on the 21st day of July 1899, and that out of a Poll of 102,098 votes 82,638 were cast in favor of such Australasian Federal Constitution, and further that.

Queen Victoria signed the Commonwealth of Australia Constitution Act which stated that the colonies would be united and known as the Commonwealth of Australia.
The colonies became states of Australia and the new federal Parliament of the Commonwealth.

Western Australia was not a party to the initial agreement but did agree to be included before 1 January 1901.

A vision for the north and our regions

The Government is encouraging businesses to invest, expand and create jobs in Australia’s regions.

Northern Australia
A strong north means a strong nation.

The Government will establish a $5 billion Northern Australia Infrastructure Facility that will be available for major infrastructure projects like ports, railways, pipelines and electricity generation.

We will also provide $100 million to improve the roads and supply chains involved in getting cattle to market.

The Government is working to finalise its plan for the north. The first ever White Paper on Developing Northern Australia will be released later this year.

National Stronger Regions Fund
The $1 billion National Stronger Regions Fund commenced rollout in 2014, selecting the best of over 400 projects from across the country.

As part of the first round of funding, announced in May 2015, over $210 million was made available for 51 projects. Round Two is expected to open in May 2015.

The fund will enhance the economic growth, activity and output of our regions and sustain these gains into the future. The Guidelines are currently under review for Round Two.

Growing, and investing in, Tasmania
The Government is delivering on creating a stronger, more competitive Tasmanian economy.

The Government has invested $60 million in Tasmanian irrigation schemes and a further $203 million to expand the Tasmanian Freight Equalisation Scheme to include exports.

These schemes will generate jobs and help Tasmanian businesses to be more competitive in global markets.

TRUMP: I AM OFFICIALLY RUNNING FOR PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES
THE EL NINNY EFFECT

Normally the government drifts along at about 8,000 metres...

Every few years, there's a drought. When it gets really bad, it suddenly rains politicians, experts and media.

They form pools of expertise and funding to cope with the drought cycle...

As soon as the good years return, they evaporate back to 8,000 metres.
